Two Are Injured In Crash on 209

Margaretville Dentist, Wife Are Seriously Hurt; 4 in Hospital

An aged Margaretville dentist and his wife were seriously injured in a head-on collision on Route 209 near Kerhonkson Sunday afternoon. Another Margaretville couple were less seriously injured in the same accident.

Dr. J. H. Gladstone, 78, and his wife, Belle, 72, were both reported in "serious" condition at Kingston Hospital this morning. Harry J. Miller, 66, and his wife, Estelle, 55, were reported in "fairly good" condition at the same hospital.

The four Margaretville residents were riding in a 1930 Buick automobile which was in collision with a tractor-trailer operated by Victor Vivins of 28 1/2 Grant street, Yonkers, according to the report by Deputy Sheriff Irving Gilman of Kerhonkson.

Vivins told Gilman he was proceeding south on Route 209 when the automobile in front of him stopped to make a left turn into Kopp's gasoline station just south of Kerhonkson. Unable to stop, Vivins swerved the large truck to the left and ran head-on into the Buick, which was driven by Miller, Gilman reported. The passenger vehicle was completely damaged to its front end, he reported. The driver of the tractor-trailer was not reported injured.

The injured were conveyed to Kingston Hospital by Eumiston ambulance after they were treated by Dr. Gellert of Kerhonkson. No arrests have been made.

Wallander Accepts

New York, July 10 (AP)—Former Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander today accepted Mayor William O'Dwyer's invitation to serve as full-time director of New York city's civilian defense. Wallander will serve without pay. He is on leave of absence, with full salary, from his position as assistant to the President of Consolidated Edison Company. New York's wartime civilian defense chief, Wallander said his chief job is to prepare a blueprint for the handling of the city's population in the event of an emergency.

Walden Residents Hurt in Accident On New York Span

New York, July 10 (Special)—Three Walden residents were injured in a head-on collision on the lower level of the Manhattan Bridge, connecting Manhattan and Brooklyn, at 5 a. m. today, police in Brooklyn reported.

According to the police, a Manhattan-bound car driven by William J. Ward, 32, of 45 First street, Walden, collided with an auto driven by Julian A. Sirsky, 29, a sailor of San Diego, Calif., who was traveling in the opposite direction near the Brooklyn end of the bridge.

Both cars were badly wrecked and traffic was tied up for almost an hour.

Ward sustained a brain concussion and head lacerations. He and Mary Ward, 24, of the same Walden address, who sustained internal and back injuries, were both taken to the Cumberland Hospital in Brooklyn.

David Ballough, 29, also of Walden, was treated at the scene for a lacerated ear and a fourth passenger in the Ward car, Charles Dixon, 43, of Brooklyn, refused medical aid.

Sirsky and two other sailors in his car, James Reardon, 20, of Binghamton and Donald Van Gorder, 21, of Barton, was taken to the Brooklyn Naval Hospital. Sirsky had a fractured right arm and head lacerations.

Wharton, Wicks Given Endorsement; Eleven Are Named as Delegates

Cluett Schantz of Marlborough won Republican designation as candidate for sheriff of Ulster county by a vote of 205 delegates against 49 votes for Howard Anderson of Accord in the only contest at the Republican unofficial county convention held in Kingston Saturday.

The convention unanimously endorsed County Judge J. Ernest Wharton of Schoharie county as candidate to succeed Jay LeFevre of New Paltz as Congressman, and unanimously endorsed State Senator Arthur H. Wicks as candidate to succeed himself.

Assemblyman John F. Wadlin, County Welfare Commissioner Edward E. Murray and Surrogate John B. Sterley were nominated to succeed themselves. Michael A. Galletta of Glasco was nominated for coroner, a position he has held under appointment of Governor Dewey since January 1 of this year.

The names of those recommended by the unofficial county convention are placed on the ballot to be presented to enrolled Republican voters at the primary election. Candidates designated at that election become the party's official choice for office.

Member Nine Years
Cluett Schantz, present chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors, has been a member of that board for nine years. He was three times elected board chairman and has the distinction of having been elected to that position without opposition from Democratic members. His name was placed in nomination by George Rusk of Marlborough.

Schantz' nomination was made unanimous following the first ballot on motion of LeRoy Lounsbury of Ellenville. Lounsbury, who had placed Anderson's name in nomination, told the delegates that he had been authorized by Anderson to say that in the event Anderson was defeated in the balloting, his successful opponent will have his complete support.

The name of Claude Bell of the town of Olive was also placed in nomination for the sheriff post by Jesse Shuster of the town of Olive. Bell, however, withdrew from the race before the balloting.

The present sheriff, George C. Smith, did not seek re-nomination. Congressman Jay LeFevre of New Paltz, who recently announced his decision to retire from Congress, offered the resolution of Judge Wharton's nomination for the Congressional post. LeFevre pointed out that Judge Wharton served three terms as district attorney of Schoharie county and is at present serving his second term as county judge.

Offers Resolution
Frank Campochiaro of Saugerties offered the resolution endorsing Senator Arthur H. Wicks' nomination to succeed himself. Campochiaro pointed out that Wicks served the state senate longer than any other Republican member, and that he has been majority leader of the senate since 1948. The resolution carried unanimously.

Jacob Donovan, delegate from the town of Lloyd, placed Assemblyman John F. Wadlin of Highland in nomination to succeed himself. Judge John B. Sterley's nomination to succeed himself was offered by Vincent G. Connolly of Kingston, and Edward E. Murray's re-nomination for the commissioner of welfare post was offered by Jesse McHugh of Wallkill. All nominations were unanimous.

Also unanimous was the nomination of Michael A. Galletta for coroner. Galletta, who was appointed by Governor Dewey on January 1 to fill the unexpired term of Jesse McHugh as coroner, was nominated by Frank Campochiaro. McHugh had resigned to [Continued on Page 16, Col. 4.]

211 Persons Die In 5 Earthquakes; 17,000 Are Injured

Town of 20,000 Reported Destroyed; Stories Conflict on Extent of Damage

Bogota, Colombia, July 10 (AP)—Unofficial reports today indicated 211 persons are dead and 17,000 injured or homeless in seven towns after five earthquakes that rocked north central Colombia over the week-end.

The presidential palace in a statement last night indicated the official death toll was at least 123. The new figures were given in the newspaper El Siglo.

El Tiempo said the number of dead reached 200, with 150 injured and the homeless 40,000. El Siglo estimates the material damage at 6,000,000 pesos, while El Tiempo said the damages amount to about 40,000,000 pesos.

Both papers said that Arboleda, a town of 20,000 was almost destroyed and that Cucutilla, of about 14,000 inhabitants, also was almost destroyed. Electric power failed after the shocks and the towns were in darkness, which contributed to the panic among the inhabitants.

Another town hit badly
Another town, Salazar de Las Palmas, population about 21,000, was also severely hit by the tremors.

The government rushed troops, police forces, and doctors, food, drugs and tents to the affected towns.

So far, the government has made no new announcement and the Red Cross has no official information because wires are down and communications almost impossible, except for radio. The help was rushed by plane.

El Siglo said that one house out of every four was damaged in Santander Del Norte Department.

El Siglo also said that five tremors were registered: At 9:30 a. m. Saturday, 10:45 p. m. Saturday; 4 a. m. Sunday; 6 a. m. Sunday and 5:30 p. m. Sunday.

Woman Is Killed in Attempt To Get Divorce Evidence

Brewster, July 10 (AP)—New York State Police said Mrs. Andrea Gehr, 30, of New York, was shot and killed by her husband when she tracked him to a cottage near here this morning.

The husband, who claimed he fired "at prowlers," fled from the scene in his car and was arrested less than two hours later at Armonk.

Police said he was accompanied by Mrs. Dorothea Matthews, 30-year-old brunette who has been locked in a bitter divorce battle for two years with her wealthy husband, Mark Matthews.

The dead woman's husband, Herbert Gehr, 39, is a New York assistant television director.

Two of five witnesses who accompanied Mrs. Gehr were slightly wounded.

The state police at Brewster said Mrs. Gehr, with four private detectives and a personal friend, had tracked her husband and Mrs. Matthews to the cottage at Birch Hills in the nearby town of Patterson, seeking evidence for a divorce.

The witness told police later they approached the cottage and rattled on the screen door when Gehr opened fire.

Mrs. Gehr was killed instantly with a single bullet and two of those with her were slightly wounded.

Gehr, when arrested, said he thought the party were prowlers in the darkness and opened fire in self-defense.

The witnesses said he and Mrs. Matthews fled in the car and they went on to Brewster to get help.

Korean Reds Near Taejon After Yanks Shy Out of Trap

Byrd Leads Drive to Cut U.S. Outlays

Virginia Senator Sees No Reason Why Some Cuts Can't Make Way for Arms Spending

May Seek Revenue Sees Congress as Forced to Look Around for More Income

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Senator Byrd (D-Va.) spearheaded a drive today to cut domestic spending, to make way for an expected bulge in military outlays to fight the war in Korea.

Byrd told reporters he sees no reason why some more far can't be trimmed off domestic activities in the $35,700,000,000 single-package money bill the Senate starts debating tomorrow.

"Purely domestic expenditures have been increased 77 per cent since 1948," Byrd said. "With a war on our hands, some of these outlays must be cut or we are going to spend ourselves into the kind of bankruptcy the Russians are counting on."

Byrd was promised help in his economy drive by a group of Republicans who backed a personnel and travel-trimming amendment rejected Saturday by the Senate Appropriations Committee when it approved the huge money bill. The amendment would not affect military outlays.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who has said he would be willing to support any necessary increase in military funds if that will bring a decisive victory in Korea, called also for economies in non-military spending.

Taft told a reporter he thinks the Korean fighting will make it more difficult than it appeared previously for Congress to cut excessive taxes about $1,000,000,000, as proposed in a House-approved bill on which the Senate Finance Committee resumes hearings today.

May Look Around
In fact, he said Congress may have to look around for some new sources of revenue.

Senator George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, proposes to push along with the tax bill in hopes that the Korean situation will show improvement in the next 10 days or two weeks.

Finance committee hearings this week will deal with tax [Continued on Page 11, Col. 7]

Seven Yanks Bound, All Shot in Face

By O. H. P. KING

Advanced American Headquarters in Korea, July 10 (AP)—

The bodies of seven American soldiers, their hands tied behind them, were found by the roadside in territory recaptured from the Communist North Koreans today.

Each had been killed by a bullet in the face.

The bodies were found by Lt. D. C. Gates of Plainsville, Tex. Gates said he found the Americans this afternoon after four of them had gone at 9:30 a. m. (6:30 p. m. E.S.T. Sunday) to a front line area subsequently lost and regained.

"They turned a corner and ran into two tanks," he said.

One jeep turned around and made a dash for it, Gates said. The driver was killed but his companion escaped.

"An observation post saw two in each of two other jeeps surrendering," Gates said. "When I arrived on the spot I found my four men and three mortar men, their hands tied behind them and a bullet fired in each face."

Gates said the Americans had been assigned to move ammunition forward.

He said Americans and North Korean troops still were fighting over possession of the area where the atrocities occurred at the time he left to make his report to nearby American headquarters.

Nebraskans Flee Broad Flood Zone

Five Lives Already Claimed by Blue River; Dam Bursts Under Crest

Crete, Neb., July 10 (AP)—Floodwaters that already have claimed the lives of five Nebraskans and caused damage likely to run into the millions charged down the Big Blue river today forcing wholesale evacuations.

Amphibious craft which piled through flood waters at York, Neb., yesterday evacuating persons trapped by a flash flood born of a torrential 13-inch downpour, were shifted to Crete today where most of the north part of town was under four to six feet of water.

About 300 persons were in the flooded area but not all of them were evacuated at once.

Evacuations by the amphibious ducks and rowboats manned by Crete volunteer firemen began about 3:30 a. m., when a hastily built dam on the west edge of the town gave way and sent the Big Blue waters pouring into the city.

Water was running over the Crete Mills Dam 95 inches deep, 14 inches over the previous all-time record set in 1949. The stage was 25.9 feet, 10 feet above flood stage, but apparently was near the crest.

The weather bureau said the river was expected to crest at 6 p. m. today with very little additional rise.

By 8 a. m. water was lapping the curb in front of the city hall at the edge of the Crete business district and still was rising.

German Refugees Show Strong Political Strength

Kiel, Germany, July 10 (AP)—German refugees from Communist Eastern Europe who showed themselves Sunday to be a strong potential political force in West Germany, today began an ambitious program.

In parliamentary voting yesterday they got nearly a quarter of the vote in the Schleswig-Holstein elections and won 16 of the state parliament's 69 seats. There were 1,341,754 votes cast.

It was the first time West Germany's 10,000,000 refugees had an opportunity for concerted action. They showed they could be a cohesive force.

Nearly 1,000,000 of them live in a squalor—in this little North German state. West German observers watched their first test at the polls as an indication of the future.

Military Faces Sharp Problems

Volunteers, Draft, Guard Use Confront U. S. Top Brass; Units Are Alerted for Movement Soon to Far East

Washington, July 10 (AP)—The army has started dipping into the small, five-division mobile force stationed in the United States to hasten help for American forces rocked by an onrushing North Korean army.

The decision to order the 2nd Infantry Division and an unspecified number of smaller units from other organizations to the Far East came less than two weeks after the United States had stepped into the Korean conflict to assist South Korea in repelling the invaders from the north.

It was indicative of how the timetable has quickened as unhappy reports came into the Pentagon from the front.

And it intensified today the manpower problems confronting the military, sharpening questions about the current volunteer effort, whether the draft would have to be used, whether the National Guard eventually would be moved into the picture.

The so-called "mobile striking force" was created for the purpose to which the 2nd Division and the other units are now being applied—deployment to any area where an emergency occurs. Fared down from original plans, it consists of the five divisions, plus the units needed to enable the combat divisions to fight. The divisions are these:

The 2nd Infantry, based at Ft. Lewis, Wash.; the 82nd Airborne, based at Ft. Bragg, N. C.; the 11th Airborne at Ft. Campbell, Ky.; the 2nd Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex.; and 3rd Infantry at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Units Are Alerted
An announcement issued simultaneously yesterday at Washington and San Francisco said that "the 2nd Infantry Division and two units of anti-aircraft artillery have been alerted for movement in the near future to the Far East command."

It said that several supporting units from the 6th Army area with headquarters at San Francisco and under which the 2nd Division also comes) also had been put on notice. And it added that similar alerts had been issued to "several" combat units in the 2nd Army (Baltimore); 3rd (Atlanta) and 4th (San Antonio, Tex.).

A marine division has been waiting for several days for ships to be assembled to take the division and its marine air unit to the Far East.

Military chiefs had nothing to say about how much help General MacArthur may have requested or how much the strategy-making joint chiefs of staff have believed he should get. MacArthur started out the Korean campaign with elements of one division. That and whatever he has committed to battle since has drawn from the four divisions of his Far East command.

Must Keep Up Defense
The defense force of Japan must be kept up, it is pointed out at the Pentagon, because the danger of attack on that country continues to exist.

On top of this situation, there is the continuing possibility of a sudden Communist move in Europe. There the United States has only a single division plus a substantial-sized constabulary force training for combat. A sudden crisis there would mean that the mobile force might have to send aid to Europe as well as the Far East.

Might Federalize Guard
There was speculation that the federal government would be reluctant, at least at the outset, to call in only certain National Guard divisions to replace the mobile force. In some quarters there was belief that the government should the time come, would federalize the whole National Guard instead of risking arguments over discrimination by calling in some divisions while others remained under state control.

Army personnel officials are keeping an eye on the trend of response to the volunteer call. They said that within the next few weeks the trend should show whether the volunteer method can be counted on or whether inducements under the draft law will be required.

Held on Arms Charge
Maxie Smith, 35, of Lakeland, Fla., was arrested by state police at the farm in Milton where he was working on a charge that he possessed a .32 calibre revolver without a permit. Smith was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Fred C. Woolsey on a charge of illegal possession of firearms and was ordered held for grand jury.

Albany, N. Y., July 10 (AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay today was appointed by Governor Dewey as chairman of the State Civil Defense Commission designed to map plans for a possible atomic attack.

Dewey announced the appointment of the former military governor of the U. S. Zone in Berlin at a news conference shortly before the Governor and General Clay met with Dewey's full cabinet [Continued on Page 11, Col. 4.]

Communist Pressure Is Successful

Allied Warplanes Stage 24-Hour Bombing on Objectives in North Korea

Says Morale Slips

MacArthur Reports Red Spirit Is Lowered by Air Attacks

Tokyo, Tuesday, July 11 (AP)—Northern Communist troops battled to within 20 air miles of Taejon, South Korea's temporary capital, early today after a "lost" U. S. battalion fought its way out of a trap.

General MacArthur in his communique told of the new North Korean advances. He said the stride was made by the North Korean First Division, which had hemmed in the unidentified "lost" battalion for two days before it slugged its way free.

MacArthur's communique said another force, probably the Third North Korean Division, was in contact with United States forces at Chochiwon, 15 miles southeast of Chonan.

At Chinchon, the Second North Korean Division engaged elements of a South Korean corps on a front just south of the city, the communique reported.

Pressure Gains Made
MacArthur said enemy pressure gained some ground in the Unsong-Chungju area, some 70 miles northeast of Chonan. Units of the 15th North Korean Division there forced back southern republican troops to high ground northwest of Nmsong, he said.

Just south of Chungju, major city in the Unsong-Chungju area, an enemy battalion, with other forces opposed South Korean troops, MacArthur's communique said.

The United Nations commander said increased activities on the east coast still indicated southward pressure with opposition from friendly forces (likely allied naval and air).

MacArthur said there was evidence the morale of the North Korean Communists was slipping under the heavy pressure applied by allied warplanes which yesterday began around the clock attacks on them.

Some 46 enemy tanks, trapped on a highway near Chonan, were knocked out by the low flying planes yesterday, front line dispatches said.

Close Support Given
MacArthur said light bombers from the Fifth Air Force performed close support and bombed troops, vehicles, tanks and trucks with reported good results. Fighters, he said, reported many tanks, trucks, railroad rolling stock and vehicles destroyed.

Napalm, the firebomb, was used with reported excellent results, the general's communique said. Napalm is a secret napalm mixture, that splatters flaming gasoline when the bomb bursts.

The advance of the North Korean troops on the populous western side of the Korean peninsula carried them to within 20 air miles of Taejon, MacArthur said. The Reds were at Chochiwon, a rail junction.

Taejon is the temporary capital of the South Korean government. But even as these "overseas" were reported, Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer said in a Tokyo interview that combined air, sea and ground forces of the Allies had stopped the Communist drive that had rolled relentlessly for two weeks.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United Nations commander, noted a distinct lull in the ground fighting in a communique issued at 2:30 p. m. today (11:30 p. m. E.S.T. Sunday).

He said the North Koreans, who raced down the peninsula against feeble opposition for two weeks, were having communication troubles since Sunday's relentless air blows.

The "lost" battalion was cut off in an all night battle July 8-9 near Chonan, about 50 miles south of the Red held Republican capital of Seoul.

Gets Confidence Vote
Tehran, Iran, July 10 (AP)—Iran's Senate today gave Premier Ali Razmara a 35-4 vote of confidence. Razmara and his American cabinet won a confidence motion in the lower house by a 94-8 vote on July 4.

AMERICA
When trouble strikes across the earth
And joy forsakes the heart
When life shows little cause for mirth
Let's play a smiling part.

Our nation is a friend to man . . .
It means a way of life
We're free to work at any plan
To rid our days of strife
We come and go—we rest and play
To satisfy each whim
No tyrant's order rules the day
Or makes a moment grim.

Our lives are blessed with true delights
And every need is filled
We have a priceless Bill of Rights
Great patriots have willed
America . . . a magic word
Inspires the world of men
And when our global voice is heard
The sun will shine . . . again.

Enlistments Show Big Jump Over Greater Part of US

By The Associated Press

A rush of applicants for military service hit New York city recruiting offices today.

Army and air force authorities said the number seeking to enlist was the greatest since World War 2.

Similar upswings in recruiting were reported in other cities across the nation—presumably the result of the war in Korea. Resumption of the draft also was cited as a cause of the trend.

In Atlanta, the number seeking to join the navy was reported up 100 per cent.

"We have all the recruits this office can handle at this time," a navy spokesman there said.

Boston also reported an increase in volunteers, adding that the rise started before the Korean crisis and stepped up after the draft was invoked.

In Kansas City, marine corps enlistments were reported tripled in the last 10 days, although army and air force volunteers were said to be normal.

Swamped in Los Angeles
A navy spokesman in Los Angeles said: "We're swamped. We had 30 enlistments a week a month ago. Now we have 30 a day."

A flood of inquiries was reported at recruiting offices in Dallas and Chicago, but actual enlistments were described as normal. A normal flow of applicants also was reported in New Orleans and Baltimore.

Many of the inquiries came from reservists seeking a return to active duty, armed forces spokesman said.

Formerly active and were among the groups that lined up at recruiting offices in Pittsburgh, recruitment of women was "about doubled" with 75 currently in the process of joining the services.

Among those crowding the New York city recruiting offices was Herbert T. Nitz, 19, a German immigrant and former member of the Hitler Youth Movement who now lives at 1420 37th street, North Bergen, N. J.

"Ever since I saw the American airlift in operation in Berlin," he said, "I have wanted to be a G. I. I'd be happy to die a G. I."

A Fordham University senior, James Casey, 22, of 152 Prospect Drive, Yonkers, N. Y., put in his bid for the air force.

"The draft is chasing me, so I feel I'll beat them to the punch," he said.

Three Staten Island youths, all schoolmates, applied at the marine corps office. One of the trio, Anthony Fucci, 19, explained:

"The situation in Korea has our dander up."

Boat Scuttling Is Investigated

The Ulster county sheriff's office is investigating what appeared to be an attempt Saturday night to scuttle a former Air Force air-sea rescue boat docked at the Hiltrebrant Dry Dock Company here.

Prompt and efficient action by men at the Hiltrebrant yards prevented the 65-foot craft from sinking after its seacock had been opened sometime Saturday evening. Five gasoline-driven pumps were used to remove the water from the hold.

John F. Borchardt of Ulster Landing, the owner of the boat, waded into the hold shortly after 8 p. m. Saturday, in an attempt to find what at first was believed to be a leak. He discovered that the seacock had been opened.

The boat had seen service in the Great Lakes and off the Virginia and Long Island coasts during the war. It was in the process of conversion and was not in commission recently.

Sugar shares and a handful of other assorted stocks showed independent strength.

Trading volume expanded when the market was sliding, contracted when signs of a comeback appeared.

Traders seemed to have digested with no trouble the announcement at the close Friday that the President had authorized the use of the draft. The market opened on a steady footing, following a bad slump Friday afternoon, but quickly developed a touch of nerves after the TV group dropped.

Lower in the curb were National Bellas Hess, National Fuel Gas, National Union Radio, Panpetec

Youth Show Ends In Germany as Group Goes Home

Frankfurt, Ger., July 10 (AP)—A scheduled Communist youth demonstration against American intervention in Korea fizzled out today.

The "Free German Youth" had slated the demonstration in front of American headquarters here but only 15 women, five children and a dog appeared. The little group was sent away by officers of some 200 German police who had ringed the spacious ground.

American military police at three times their normal strength guarded buildings.

There was some talk that the demonstrators planned to come back with more sympathizers but police were inclined to discount this. German police however set up a patrol around the grounds.

Police said he could either have jumped or fallen, but were inclined to believe it was an accident. The body was found naked on the roof of a one-story extension below, and police surmised Cleary may have tried to open a window and fainted. Cleary's body was found by a night watchman at 4 a. m. He had checked in yesterday at the Royton Hotel, 64 W. 44th St., in New York's theatrical district. Police listed his home as North Hollywood.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., July 7—The present war talk, due to the trial balloon sent up by Russia in Korea, does not worry me. Certainly, it should not cause readers to overlook the silly cuts which the Post Office Department has started. This in the end may be more serious.

Changes That Have Been Made
If you live in the residential area of a city or town containing a first or second class post office, your mail is now delivered to your home only once a day rather than twice a day. There is also a better than even chance that you will not get it until afternoon. If you have a business in one of these cities which is located in a so-called "business area" you may get more deliveries. However, if your office or business is located in a "residential area," you must struggle along with a single daily delivery.

Of course, many readers living in semi-rural areas beyond the outskirts of the cities and towns, and on farms, are glad to get their mail only once a day. But in addition to curtailing delivery service, the Post Office Department has made sweeping cuts in pick ups from street letter boxes in cities and towns. It has also eliminated much of the night work in post offices which formerly was such a great help in moving the mail quickly and efficiently. These latter cuts will be felt by everybody who writes to or receives mail from cities. This means you.

Why the Cuts Were Ordered
For the first time since the establishment of a post office on this continent nearly 260 years ago, we find our American postal service taking a step backwards. Why? We are told that the cuts were ordered to save money and to bring the Post Office Department budget within the amount suggested by congressional leaders. This may be true. If it is true, it seems strange that the men who run the Post Office Department are making no apparent attempt to save money in ways other than the curtailment of service. Is it not possible that these cuts in service were engineered to divert public attention from the acute need for streamlining and further mechanizing the postal service?

Reorganization Needed
Many people claim that the postal service is grossly mismanaged. I do not know whether that is true, but there doubtless are many instances of inefficiency and stupidity which cost us taxpayers needless heavy expenditures. For example, look carefully at the post office trucks operating in your vicinity. Note the large number of old ones which cost more to run and maintain than they are worth. The Hoover Commission found that the average age of these postal vehicles was 15 1/2 years.

The next time you are in your post office, glance into where the mail is being handled. You will find obsolete equipment and lay out unadapted to moving the mail as quickly and as cheaply as possible. It is true that the post office does not control the amounts paid to railroads, steamships and airlines for moving the mail. Nor does it control the inexcusably heavy volume of government mail which it must handle at a loss. It can, however, control its own employees and ought to revamp its procedure before resorting to curtailing services.

E.O. Cuts Mean Higher Prices

The slowdown in mail movements will become worse by early fall when mail volume normally increases. Already, delays of from 24 to 48 hours are being reported in the delivery of first class letters. Mail order businesses and those firms which depend chiefly on rapid turnover to keep above the break-even point will suffer the most and some unemployment is bound to occur. This will result in higher prices for merchandise. Another effect will be an eventual drop in postal revenues. An ill-conceived plan like this is bound to backfire. It is false economy of the worst type.

These poorly planned postal cuts reflect the confusion which prevails in official circles in Washington. More disturbing still, especially in this instance is the apathy of our people. Although the majority of our people are gravely affected by these changes, yet very few have actively objected. These cuts receive surprisingly little attention from the masses of the people. Indifference such as this has resulted in loss of liberty in other lands. Shall we, too, lose our rights and services, and ultimately our liberty, by neglect and inaction.

Two Killed in Plane

Wolfeville, Md., July 10 (AP)—A two-engine plane crashed into a mountain about 1 a. m. today near this western Maryland town, killing two persons. State police who climbed through a rough wooded section to the crash scene said the plane burst into flames on impact. Trooper H. O'Brien said he thought it was an army plane, but he said he couldn't be sure because practically all identification was burned off. Police recovered two charred bodies, but on-the-spot identification was impossible.

Not just a sniff of one brand, or a casual whiff of another—a quick inhale of this cigarette, an exhale of that. Not just hurried, one-puff experiments.

The sensible test, the "no-trick" test is to smoke Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days. Let your "T-Zone" decide.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 10, 1950

RADIO FREE EUROPE

Many wise statesmen have been appealing insistently to the free world to exert greater effort to the grim "struggle for men's minds."

They have pounded repeatedly on the idea that it isn't enough to combat Russian communism with economic and military measures; that freedom must be shown to be the great cause it really is, a way of life eminently superior to the slavery imposed by Moscow.

The first imaginative strike in this direction has now been taken. From a secret radio transmitter in Europe, a new series of programs is being beamed to the countries behind the Iron Curtain—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria.

Radio Free Europe, as the new transmitter is called, is the product of the National Committee for a Free Europe, which was organized about a year ago by outstanding American citizens.

But this is no duplication of our official government Voice of America. Much of the broadcasting will be done by leading democratic exiles from the Iron Curtain nations themselves. Among them are a former premier, of Poland, a former Czech ambassador to France, a one-time Romanian foreign minister.

In the words of DeWitt Poole, former State Department Russian expert who heads the committee, these distinguished men will "speak to their imprisoned countrymen in their native language, in the familiar tone of a family reunited."

The new group, being privately financed and administered, has the further advantage of being free of the diplomatic restrictions which hamper the broadcasts of the Voice. Radio Free Europe can speak with tremendous vigor and frankness.

Never was it clearer that the West must tell its story with force and power. Russia and her pawns are fouling the air with poisonous lies which seek to heap upon the United States the blame for the Soviet-inspired Korean war.

The Russians are working on the old theory of the Big Lie which Hitler developed: repeat a whopper often enough and people will begin to believe it.

Apparently the only antidote for the Big Lie is the Big Truth. With more energy and will than the Soviets can muster, we must broadcast to Europe and around the globe the facts about Korea. We must expose the shoddy, self-condemning fabrications of Andrei Gromyko and his propaganda minions in satellite countries.

We must make it plain to decent people everywhere that the language of communism is the language of falsehood, that Russia's words can never be believed because words to the Soviet Union are simply weapons in the psychological theatre of war.

NEW DISEASE HOPE

For the past four years an experiment in the use of ultraviolet light to curb the spread of airborne diseases has been conducted in Westchester County, New York. The first comprehensive report of findings has been made, and it says that there has been definite success. The experiment was aimed at colds and influenza, but chicken pox and measles are used as the primary basis for figures, since these two diseases can be more accurately diagnosed and traced.

Two significant conclusions are stated. Health authorities conducting the experiment are convinced that use of ultraviolet light can reduce the communication of airborne diseases from person to person under most conditions. An exception was found during periods of high humidity, when the effectiveness of the light was greatly reduced. It was concluded further that this control not only can curb spread of disease within a community, but can create a barrier to prevent spread of a contagious disease outbreak across the country.

As a dampener on leaping enthusiasm, it must be recognized that these are only beginning findings, and that now further experiment over a larger area is needed to confirm the early conclusions. But here for

THE UNITED NATIONS

Soviet Russia, six months ago, began a boycott of the United Nations. This was accomplished by a withdrawal of Russian representatives from attending general and special sessions of all U.N. bodies. The reason: Soviet Russia demanded that Soviet China be seated and Nationalist China expelled immediately and without further ado.

The charter of the United Nations gives to five nations, the United States, Great Britain, Soviet Russia, China and France, the right to veto certain measures in the Security Council. Soviet Russia has employed the veto on numerous occasions. Except as the veto may be used on all other occasions, a majority prevails. Soviet Russia has boycotted all sessions of the United Nations to avoid submitting to a majority.

The challenge to the United Nations was quite clear. If at any time, on any question, Russia's will was resisting or rejected, the Russians, when they could, would use the veto; otherwise, the boycott. In effect, it paralyzed the work of the United Nations, because the decisions of all the members were always subject to rejection by one of them.

Actually, the official policy of the State Department was not antagonistic to Russia's purposes in seating Soviet China. Actually, the way was being prepared to seat Soviet China. The United States had already announced that it would not use the veto; that it would submit to a majority vote and there have been numerous indications that the State Department would welcome such a majority. The attitude of our State Department encouraged many nations to feel that Dean Acheson wanted Red China seated, but that he dared not make such a suggestion openly. Many felt that he would welcome a defeat for the United States in the United Nations.

Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, felt that unless this issue could be resolved by the seating of Soviet China, the United Nations itself might cease to exist. He traveled to see Stalin himself, and he came back empty-handed so far as the rest of the world is concerned. Nevertheless, the British, hopeful that they might yet contain the Communist development in Asia, were most active in seeking a majority for the seating of Soviet China. In fact, just before the Korean war broke, the British had finally given notice that they would support seating Soviet China. There can be no doubt that in a few months the British would have succeeded.

What public opinion in this country might have been, only a prophet can gauge. American public opinion has accepted many indignities and outrages. Weary of politics as war, disgusted with the kind of international relations we have engaged in, most Americans had grown apathetic to most issues. Furthermore, Chiang Kai-shek had been given such a bad name and Formosa was proclaimed so unimportant that it did not appear that our people would favor expending American lives on Nationalist China.

Soviet Russia thus faced the probability of an outstanding victory in the United Nations—a victory that would give her two permanent seats on the Security Council. Furthermore, such a victory would have told such nations as French Indo-China, Thailand, the Philippines and even Iran and West Germany that Soviet Russia could get away with anything. In a word, Russia's position would have been strengthened greatly. And it would have happened.

Now, the question arises: Why did Russia throw such a certain victory away? For it has been thrown away.

As the situation stands today, the United States has taken a protectorate over Formosa. The Seventh Task Force is now guarding Formosa. This does not altogether mean that the State Department's policy has changed, but it does mean that the question of seating Soviet China will not arise until the Korean episode is concluded; further, it is not likely that Soviet Russia will return to the United Nations until this and other pending issues are settled.

So, the United Nations temporarily is a society of non-Marxian nations (except Yugoslavia and Guatemala). Herbert Hoover proposed such a course some time ago, and was rejected for his foresight. When Soviet Russia returns, she will be faced by a United Nations that got its members to go to war in its defense. This is something startlingly new, and from it will come many surprising developments in international relations. (Copyright 1950, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Most of us are aware that heart stroke (coronary thrombosis) and brain stroke (apoplexy) are due to high blood pressure. Because so many individuals worry unnecessarily about their blood pressure, physicians today seldom take the blood pressure after the first two or three visits of, or to, the patient. Almost anything can raise the blood pressure temporarily—a heavy meal, a drink of alcohol, some emotional disturbance, and if the patient learns that his blood pressure is higher than during his last visit he will worry about it.

Since heart ailments are such a frequent topic of conversation some reassurance is needed by those with high blood pressure about the possibility of accidents (strokes) occurring while they are at work.

In "Industrial Medicine," Chicago, Dr. E. W. Probst compares the ability and accident records of persons with high blood pressure with those of an equal number of persons who did the same kind of work but did not have high blood pressure.

This observation, together with previous studies and the opinions of leading heart specialists, he writes, "shows that persons with high blood pressure are good industrial risks and that many persons with high blood pressure, that is pressure above the usual normal limits, can serve industry satisfactorily over long periods. It is suggested that the so-called blood pressure levels for general employment industrial examinations be revised upwards."

The thought, then, is that high blood pressure, a condition often present in conscientious but nervous individuals, is not a dangerous condition, and that medical examinations for industrial firms should keep this in mind when examining those who are applying for industrial positions.

the first time seems to be real hope of attacking influenza and the common cold by the soundest method known to medicine—breaking the chain of infection. Building up resistance, quick cures, effective isolation and much measures are fine, but they are only partial measures. If its chain of infection can be broken, actual elimination of a disease becomes simply a matter of time.

When the sun wilts the garden, the rain drains away the soil and the bugs set up housekeeping while the back is yet aching, it takes restraint to call a spade no more than a spade.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DEWEY PEARSON

Washington — A general who brandishes a swagger stick and talks in a crisp British accent is catching brickbats at the Pentagon for whooping intelligence errors on Korea.

He is Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, 58, German-born chief of MacArthur's intelligence who has been with him since Manila days. Willoughby copies his boss in both stance and garb, even to the scarf inside the open-throated shirt.

A few weeks before the Korea attack, General Willoughby dismissed Korea as "not important" in talks with visiting firemen from Washington.

"You must keep your eye on the ball and know what they do next," Willoughby pontificated. "You can take it from me, Iran is the place to watch. An attack very soon, old boy."

This was essentially the briefing given Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley in Tokyo. In fact, General Bradley, returning to Washington, was most cautious about committing aid to Korea because of Willoughby's advice.

Two errors of judgment laid at General Willoughby's door are:

1. The National Security Council decision that Korea's threat was to its "internal security." This was made despite a report from General Willoughby's own staff that there were some 70 tanks in North Korea. Tanks are strictly an offensive weapon, and now the key to the Communist successes. Yet Willoughby attached no significance to the presence of these tanks.

2. Overrating the South Korean Army. In his first teletype conversations with the Pentagon after the invasion, General MacArthur confidently expected the southerners to take a firm stand. Actually, the southern army fell apart in virtually a complete rout. This has dangerously imperiled United Nations supply lines and ports.

Note—To one delegation from Washington, General Willoughby lectured on the importance of peace in the Orient. "It's all way you live, you know, that counts," he declaimed.

Capturing the South
For years Republicans have been hoping to capture or even make a dent in the solid Democratic south — without success. Now it looks as if they could do it.

Jonathan Daniels, who used to be one of the Roosevelt-Truman secretaries, had a heart-to-heart talk with his old boss in the White House the other day and told him how.

Daniels, who has been one of Truman's most loyal supporters, warned that the administration's continued blind support for the F.E.P.C. (Fair Employment Practices Commission) was ruining the Democratic party in the south, and would even defeat the best parts of the Truman program in the north.

Daniels, who comes from North Carolina and is the son of Woodrow Wilson's liberal secretary of the navy, gave Truman a case history showing how Sen. Frank Graham, former president of the University of North Carolina and one of the outstanding liberals in the south, had been defeated for the Senate only because of the Negro-F.E.P.C. question. He also cited the Senate primary in South Carolina where the two candidates, Gov. Strom Thurmond, Dixiecrat, and Sen. Olin Johnston, both are trying to outdo each other in castigating the Negro.

Smart G.O.P. Tactics
It is doubtful if Jonathan Daniels' talk with the President made too much of an impression. Daniels had talked to him before—in Chicago last May and again last fall—without result.

It is also significant that certain Republican leaders, such as Senator Brewster of Maine, who votes for F.E.P.C., have been using F.E.P.C. to undermine the Democratic party in the south. It is likewise significant that Guy Gabrielson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, made an unadvertised trip to South Carolina the other day where Republicans are secretly backing Gov. Strom Thurmond, former Dixiecrat candidate for president.

Meanwhile, here is the inside story of the "battle of North Carolina," which shows how the G.O.P. has now learned how to invade the south in sheep's clothing.

Up until June 5, 1950, Willis Smith, Senator Graham's opponent for the Senate, having trailed in the first primary, had not asked for a runoff. He was 50,000 votes behind Graham, and it looked as if he could not overcome his lead.

But on June 5 the Supreme Court handed down one of its historic decisions, opposing segregation in the University of Texas. This was announced in the North Carolina newspapers on June 6 and one day later Willis Smith seized this as a heaven-sent opportunity to defeat Frank Graham.

Graham had previously held a state-wide examination for candidates to West Point, announcing that he would appoint the man with the highest score. A Negro came out as third alternate. This was one of Smith's best weapons.

Helping him spread the anti-Negro propaganda were large amounts of Republican money, some of it raised by Senator Brewster, chairman of the Senate Republican Re-election Committee. Among other things Brewster inserted in the Congressional Record a Reader's Digest version of a book by isolationist, pro-Fascist John T. Flynn, castigating Graham. Brewster's insert exceeded the allotted space, so part was paid for by someone other than the taxpayers. At any rate a million reprints were made and mailed from a box number in Grand Central Station in New York to boxholders in North Carolina.

Ex-Convict Enters Fight
One of the organizations which mailed these reprints was the Committee for Constitutional Government, headed by Dr. Edward Rumsley, an ex-convict, jailed during World War I for being the agent of the Kaiser. Many reprints were mailed under the frank of Congressman Ralph G. Gwin, New York Republican, friend of General Eisenhower, and who has loaned his frank to almost every pro-fascist organization in the United States.

On top of this, Republicans cleverly concocted Negro endorsements of Graham under the phony title of the "National Society for Advancement of Colored People." There is no such society. But there is a "National Association for Advancement of Colored People," headed by Walter White.

By changing the word "association" to "society," however, and signing the letters "White" instead of "White," Graham's enemies succeeded in fooling thousands of North Carolina voters. Copies of these phony endorsements were mailed from New York to North Carolina, where, as a result, thousands of voters who had been for Graham in the first primary stayed away from the polls in the runoff.

Note—Likable, lethargic Senator Guy Gillette, Iowa Democrat, is chairman of a Senate Committee supposed to investigate expenditures of this kind. However, he has appointed as one of his investigators Fielding Wright, Jr., son of Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi, the No. 2 Dixiecrat; so it isn't difficult to guess how much investigating will be done.

Three Big Points Are Taken From Preparation Orders to Aid in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 10—Immediate preparation has been ordered to meet military contingencies that may arise at any moment in Formosa and Indo-China as well as Korea.

Here is what it means—summarizing the views of military men who believe that resolute and forthrightness now will stave off threats by the Communists in critical areas of the world:

1. It means at least 120,000 more American troops for Korea alone—half for combat and half for support. There were about 120,000 American troops in Japan before the Korean war broke out and this army has to be reinforced.

2. It means that at least three more of the large aircraft carriers of the Essex type—of which 17 are in "mothballs"—must be commissioned promptly by the U. S. Navy, and the requisite number of cruisers and destroyers added to protect the carriers against submarine attack.

3. It means that this is the most acute need of all—there must be more transports made available at once. Auxiliary ships of all kinds, not only to carry troops and planes, but to transport fuel and food and ammunition, must be taken out of "mothballs" immediately and crews assembled to sail them. More than 150 ships will be needed for this purpose. No requisitioning of the British and the United States will be necessary in the Atlantic unless general war breaks out, but it may be necessary to take over some of the passenger ships in the Pacific this summer.

Perhaps most important of all news obtained today by this correspondent is that the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff have made numerous in their recommendations and harmonious in their functioning from the start of the Korean crisis, and that it is at the civilian end where things have bogged down. The delays have been due to red tape and a tendency to waste time asking the military people to justify their requests. This is inexcusable in time of crisis.

It should have taken fifteen minutes but it took a full week before the plan—revealed for the first time in these dispatches last Monday—for a call to "volunteer reserves" was finally authorized. At first it was denied officially that anything like it was being planned, but the fact was that matter was being studied for several days from a dollar-and-cents angle.

It should have been obvious that experienced personnel, especially technicians, ready for active duty in the navy and the air force could not have been obtained by expanding the draft or by recruiting enlisted men. Likewise, while a visitation of U. S. Marines were alerted and packed up when the Korean crisis broke, they were not ordered to sail for a week and they had not left California two months after the outbreak of the Korean war. The reason? No shipping was immediately available for them.

The remedy for these delays lies in putting the White House and the various civilian secretaries of the armed services on a war footing. The three operating heads of the U. S. joint chiefs of staff should meet at least once a day with the commander-in-chief and the latter would then get his military advice direct. He could cut red tape and issue orders to reduce civilian "bottlenecks" and the lengthy paper work which is all right in peacetime but which becomes a frustration in wartime. There are four civilian secretaries for the armed services and various committees set up by them, as well as a civilian agency known as the National Security Council which is intersected between the U. S. joint chiefs and the President. S. Joint Chiefs never intended that to be the practical setup in wartime.

When wartime operations are in progress, the military must be given the right of way and the civilians must assist and not try to direct it; serious delays are to be avoided and lives are to be saved on the fighting fronts.

The gravity of the situation in Korea for the time when the United States has been caught unprepared for sudden war. It will take 18 months to put the aircraft industry into full production. Meanwhile, planes in "mothballs" most of them good enough for the interim, must be gotten out and flown provided for them. The new "jets" may have to be held in reserve for the time when the Russians may bring out their "jets."

The next point of danger is Formosa which is 100 miles from the mainland of China. The U. S. navy has been ordered to protect Formosa but it cannot do so unless it has more planes in service and this means more aircraft carriers and fighters. If the Chinese Communists start bombing Formosa—expected now any day—the American navy, with only one carrier task force in those waters, will have to be aided by the U. S. air force based on Okinawa 300 miles or more away from the bases on the China mainland. That will have to be done. When this happens, Chinese Communist troops will doubtless be sent to reinforce North Korea and Chinese nationalist troops will be sent to aid South Korea. Contingencies in southeast Asia, particularly in Indo-China, are giving concern. Plans for that area have not been revealed.

More aircraft carrier task forces for the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean and more U. S. air force planes and equipment may have to be sent to bases in the Middle East to anticipate a Communist march across the borders of Iran.

What becomes clearer and clearer than anything exercised by the British empire in centuries past, but is the United States? The right to initiate "democracy" in the children, notwithstanding the fact that the constitutionality reflects democracy and provides for a Republican form of government.

It is a notorious fact now that teachers in many public schools and universities are covert Communists. The truth is equally notorious that many non-Communist teachers are ignorant of the frightful facts of unionism, of the evil of the unlimited power of Congress to tax people's incomes and of the fraud of the Social Security system. They are ignorant not only because they got their education from political doctrinaires in a time of high political tension and fury but also because they have mediocre minds incapable of independent study or even curiosity.

Much of our public education is not only a waste of the pupils' time and the public money but a great injustice to the victims, who are kept out with degrees for having learned prescribed courses of untruth. Indeed, there are fields of intellectual interest which have been absolutely closed to honest study or even journalistic discussion. A true believer in the constitution puts himself in serious peril in setting forth these facts.

There is absolutely no doubt that the opponents of all this (Continued on Page 9, Col. 4)

In order to show our hospitality to tourists who visit our city when summer arrives they're everywhere. Be kind to them and do your share. Do what you can to make them welcome. Then we're sure again they'll come. Small town folks are always friendly. Their hearts are open to very many. Always be ready they may want to know. Of suitable places where they can go. As Kingston people are very real. They'll be happy and won't forget. Such wonderful people they never met. Keys of the city are for the tourist. When they go, they always are missed. We all love guests, see what you can do. Make the tourists one of you. Open your hearts during the season. Help tourists find their summer pleasure.

Bus traffic, although heavy, did not reach the peak of last year. Taxi drivers are said to have reported a disappointing week-end. The larger resorts are reported to have done a capacity business, some even having to turn would-be guests without reservations away.

The matter of securing a new board of three assessors for the village of Ellenville, long drawn out, was settled at the last meeting of the village board. Named for terms of one year were Clyde Benson, Morris Glusker and Joseph Cohen. They succeed Sherman Loucks and Andrew Baxter, whose terms had expired and Lewis Gillespie, who resigned some time ago with one year of his term yet to run. The positions pay $600 a year.

The large attendance at the funeral of Dr. Alice Divine, held at her late residence Saturday afternoon, attested the widespread respect and affection in which she was so generally held. The deserved eulogy was given by the Rev. William Coombe, who was assisted in the service by the Rev. William A. Irish, pastor of the Ellenville Reformed Church, of which Dr. Divine was a member.

Mrs. Ernest Sherman, regent and Miss Nellie Newkirk, chaplain, conducted the ritual of the Major Dwight Divine Chapter, Daughters of the Union, 1881-1885, of which Dr. Divine was an honorary regent. Active bearers were Chandler Young, Dwight Divine, John H. Divine, III, Robert W. Keeler, Dick P. Fullerton and Chester Schoonmaker. Honorary bearers were Frank Schoonberry of Ellenville, Kenneth Wil- son of Woodstock and Robert A. Snyder of Saugerties for the Ulster County Republican Central Committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Divine and John H. Divine of Orlando, Fla., drove up for the funeral of their aunt, Dr. Alice Divine. They were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Young and left on the return trip home Wednesday afternoon.

Next Best Thing to a New Road!

YOU must understand, of course, that nothing in the world can take the place of a beautiful ribbon of improved highway——stretching so enticingly out into the open country, and all but beseeching you to come for a ride!

But under the happiest auspices, you will have to do much of your driving, for years to come, down roads and highways that leave something to be desired——and how lucky you'll be if you ride them out in a 1930 Cadillac!

In recent years, Cadillac has carried out a tremendous program of research and improvement to achieve a finer "rough-road" ride. The development work has covered steering, springs, shock absorbers, frame, wheels, tires, shackles—and all the attendant engineering problems involved.

In the 1930 Cadillacs, this program has come to full fruition—and the results are simply a revelation.

First, you get wonderful balance. The car "stays put"—and you have a reassuring feeling of stability, even when the going's uncommonly rough.

And your ride is amazingly level. You "float" over the bumps and the depressions, ever so gently. Ordinary shocks are simply absorbed.

And, of course, the remarkable quietness, of both body and chassis, shows up most dramatically on the roughest roads. For quality tells its finest story when the pressure is greatest.

Yes, there can be no question that a 1930 Cadillac is the next best thing to a new road!

But, of course, comfort is only one of Cadillac's superlative virtues.

It's Cadillac for beauty, too—and for safety, and performance, and long life, and economy. And, above all, for prestige. In fact, it's Cadillac for everything that makes a motor car a joy to possess and a pleasure to drive.

Why not get acquainted with this wonderful car? We'd be happy to see you any time.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

New York (AP)—The guy who wears a badge that looks like the other side of a buffalo nickel is going overseas again—ready to fight for America.

He's done it before, he's ready now, and he'll do it anytime he's called on.

Who is he? He's the guy with the Indianhead patch on his shoulder—the GI Joe who has worn thirty Division patches and with great combat success in two world wars.

It's a famous division. Everyone in the army knows it—and knows its record. It has been alerted at its Fort Lewis, Wash., base to get ready to go to the Far East.

And this news today must send a thrill of warm memory through tens of thousands of Americans of two generations. Some who served with the Second Infantry at the Argonne in 1918 had sons who went with it from the hedgerows of Normandy to the River Elbe between 1944 and 1945.

I don't know who posed for the profile Indian view of their emblem—Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse, Geronimo, or a tired old buck from a reservation in upper New York state.

Lifetime of Peace

But this I know about the Second Infantry Division from a long acquaintance—a year in wartime equals a lifetime of peace, and just a bit more—and that is this: The wearers of the Indianhead patch are an emergency outfit.

Like the shoulder-to-shoulder comrades in Europe, the equally famous "Fighting First" Infantry Division, they are an old-line regular army outfit. On their performance depends the professional reputation of the professional American army.

They are used to delivering in emergencies. They have a pride of arms, a tradition of performance in battle, a morale in being that measure our military strength as a nation.

It is true that they may be sent to the Pacific area as occupation troops in Japan to replace the 24th Infantry Division units summoned already to Korea. That could be temporary or permanent, as the needs of the situation develop. But I am sure that General MacArthur will be less lonely to have them under his command. For the tradition that this unit has is what top commanders like to rely on—when the cards are down, the die is cast.

Want Division Under Them

They want to have under them a division that has proved itself before in battle. Wouldn't you, if you were going to boss a big fight?

Only 82 of the present 15,000 men in the division marched with it through France and Germany. But they are a hard solid core of trained men to pass on to the youngsters of the second division's tradition of standing firm in time of trouble.

If they do meet the test again, I can imagine a veteran sergeant telling a boy swept by his first fear of death:

"You think it's tough now, kid? Just about five years and eight months ago we were parked near the German-English border. We looked out on a snowy December day and damned if it didn't seem like they were throwing the whole Nazi army against us."

"We were on the northern shoulder helping protect Liege, our big supply dump. And if they'd got through us the war would have gone on some longer. They hit us with every damned thing they could think of—tanks and artillery and infantry and even spies wearing our uniforms and riding in captured American jeeps. You couldn't even tell a buddy from an enemy—for sure."

"But we held them. They didn't get through. It went on for 72 straight hours, day and night. The old man—Major Gen. Walter M. Robertson, he's retired now—called out the cooks and truck drivers. Hell, we knocked out German tanks by setting fire to gasoline cans and dropping 'em on them from command headquarters."

"But, dammit, we didn't let them through. They didn't get by."

The main thing now about the Indianhead Division is—I don't believe even the U. S. marines will find anything to object about its battle ability if the fortunes of war should ever decree that they fight, side by side.

EAT WELL for Less

Fill Peppers With Sausage Meat

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Everyone likes stuffed green peppers, including the family budget. Try this recipe—it has character.

Sausage Stuffed Peppers (8 servings)

Four large green peppers, 1 pound sausage meat, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1/3 cup chopped celery, 1 1/2 cups cooked rice, 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco, one 8-ounce can tomato sauce.

Wash peppers; cut in half lengthwise. Remove seeds but not stems. Place in boiling salted water and boil 5 to 8 minutes—until almost tender. Drain. Place sausage meat in skillet and cook until brown and meat separates into particles. Drain off drippings. Add onion and celery.

Cook about 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Add rice and Tabasco; mix well. Stuff peppers. Place in 11 x 6 x 2-inch baking dish. Spoon tomato sauce over peppers. Pour a small amount of water (about 1/4 cup) in bottom of dish so peppers do not stick. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 25 minutes.

Menu making can be much easier, and you can cut food costs, too, if you plan meals several days in advance. Study market reports and your local markets before you begin. Use as many plentiful foods

No Answer for Avid Aphid

Riverside, Calif. (AP)—"Wanted: An iron curtain, or something, to stop the green peach aphid." No such public appeal has been made by the University of California citrus experiment station here, but neither have its experts been able to halt the spread of the green peach aphid. This creature flies through clouds of insecticide without turning a hair, spreading a virus that causes cany taloupe mosaic. This is a disease which on two recent occasions has ruined a third of the early melon crop hereabouts.

SCHOOL IS OUT

Children all over the country have put away their school books, or are preparing to do so, to enjoy the summer vacation.

To the children, the time has arrived for fun and relaxation, of freedom from school routine, discipline, homework and examinations. They take readily and eagerly to this change to all-day play and outdoor life.

We adults see school days as necessary to the mental and educational growth of the child. Similarly, we can look on his vacation days as essential to his healthy physical growth. Immediate benefits can be seen the first few days a child is home from school. In some cases, lagging appetite, lack of sleep and children begin to sleep better because increased fresh air and exercise bring on a healthy fatigue at the end of the day.

Although school days mean a certain amount of confinement and deprivation of outdoor exercise, they tend to foster regular habits of eating, sleeping, and cleanliness among children. For example, most parents get their children to bed on time because they have to get up early for school. Children generally eat a better breakfast during the school year and many schools provide pupils with a nourishing, well-balanced lunch. There is less opportunity, too, during school days for children to nibble at snacks and spoil their appetites for good food at the main meals.

As a general rule, children are "scrubbed for school," with special attention to clean fingernails and teeth. (Dentists report that the appearance of dental cavities among children is greatest during the summer vacation.) Pupils are reminded almost daily in class of the importance of health and hygiene.

Moreover, many schools have doctors and nurses, at least on a part-time basis, to help keep a check on the health of the children.

Just enough of the attention given to the child's health during school weeks should carry over into the summer vacation to assure that he returns to school happy and healthy in September. This certainly does not mean that a child should be neglected about health rules after an "earned" vacation following nine months of study and school routine. Nor does it mean that a few "late nights" or extra snacks during the day will do harm.

But it does mean that parents should realize the understandable tendency to allow things to "slide" during the summer months and help make the child's summer vacation the relaxing, refreshing and healthful experience it is meant to be.

As Pegler Sees It

rushing tendency toward an American version of the Nazi-Fascist state have been set upon as though they were enemies of their own country. Indeed, it is common practice among the actual Nazi-Fascists to refer to constitutional Americans as Fascists and to set up a clamor to the effect that "reaction" means "fascism." The fact is, of course, that reaction is normal, honest and patriotic. If the Labor Relations Act is action, the repeal of that law and the abolition of the Labor Relations Board would be reaction.

I never advocate these reforms without stating sufficient reasons. But those who probably would call me a Fascist for taking this bold position never even discuss the proof that this unionism is a criminal conspiracy and intolerable. They may be too ignorant, as products of our public education, to be able to recognize the similarity between our union pickets and the Black and Brown Shirts of the Duces and the Fuehrer. Their inferior minds, however, so thoroughly drilled in New Deal propaganda that they cannot see the Nazi-Fascism of their ownism. So it has come to pass that any sincere, intellectual advocate of the constitution is subject to smears of the most disgraceful and humiliating kind and to the painful and costly effects of mechanized hatred. We have laws which bring this sort of abuse within the criminal zone, but we are so far gone in fascism that they are not enforced. This is a conspiracy to injure citizens for upholding the Constitution of the United States and to deter them from the freer exercise of rights established by the constitution, that is a crime.

It may seem unthinkable, but the time has come when the citizen who defends the constitution is instinctively regarded by many thoughtless Americans as an enemy of the republic and of the working people. He is, in short, a dirty Fascist and the unconstitutional Marxian schemes which he opposes are "progressive" and "liberal" reforms. It was only a few years ago when Americans opposed to our participation in the war were sneeringly called "America Firsters," not only by public officials but by influential newspapers. Some Nazi agents were said to have taken advantage of this movement for Hitler's purposes, but it was much more American than otherwise. So the fine old patriotic slogan "America First" became a snarl of hateful derision and now, as I observed, the constitutionalists is depicted as a public enemy.

At the beginning, I speculated whether the job had become or would become too big for popular government. The New Dealers and Fair Dealers obviously think so because they clamor for more and more power over our lives and more of the fruits of our toil. As a citizen with faith in the constitution I favor giving our

Newspaper Widows

By FRANK TRIPP

The blank page looked up at me. It was time to grind out another of those effusions for the papers that print my stuff. What to put on it I didn't know. You big sap, I thought to myself, just write two words, "I resign," and send it in.

Why do I bother with this task that comes easy part of the time but is a pain in the neck a lot of other times, I pondered. So I wrote, not the two words, but a polite statement that it was Spring, that my boats, the bosom of the lake and the great outdoors called me—and I was through.

There was gratitude that editors had borne with me these many years; the cunning suggestion that I suspected their inability for doing so; and then the grand adieu and braggadocio that for 49 years I had labored with pencil, pad and typewriter and had earned the rest, seclusion and retirement which now would be mine.

"There, that's that!" I said to Fanny. "That's what?" she asked, over the sock she was knitting. "I'm through with the cursed column," I said. "Why I ever got so embroiled in it, I've never quite known."

"Have you picked the pallbearers, or will that be my job," she asked. "Pallbearers, my eye," I said. "Here's one guy who knows how to retire; I'm just lousy with hobbies and things to do."

"Oh yeah," she said. "Maybe you are, but you're not going to be any bargain to live with; not that you ever have been any special sort of one. If you're serious about it, just figure out a way that I can retire too, 'cause I'm not going to stay on the job all alone."

I ASKED HER what she meant about staying on the job all alone—and she gave me an earful. When she got through I felt like a crushed peanut on a circus lot. I walked over and kissed her, tore up my brave pronouncement and wrote to George Little to get busy and get me some more newspapers.

21 Persons Killed

Casablanca, French Morocco, July 10 (AP)—Twenty-one persons were killed in the crash of a French passenger plane soon after it took off from Casablanca airport yesterday. Nine surviving passengers were injured, eight of them critically. A woman and her child living near the crash scene were burned severely when a blazing piece of wreckage fell on their house. All those aboard the plane,

Rescues Man From River

Hoboken, N. J., July 10 (AP)—A one-legged man dived 25 feet into the narrow space between a ship and a moving barge last night to rescue a man from the water. Vincenzo Marino, 60-year-old longshoreman, fell into the 2½-foot space between a freighter and a barge he was helping to unload. The barge was moving slightly. Sam Sansevere, who lost his right leg when he was four years old, was standing on the deck of the freighter. He unfasted his artificial limb, dived in, held Marino's head above the murky Hudson river waters until help came. Then he put his leg on again and resumed his job of checking the freighter cargo. Marino was injured slightly.

Dolores J. Herzog Becomes Bride of Joseph F. Fiore

Miss Dolores Joan Herzog, daughter of Mrs. Fred Herzog of Flatbush and the late Fred Herzog, became the bride of Joseph Francis Fiore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Settino Fiore of East Kingston, Sunday, July 2. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edmund J. Radford, pastor of St. Colman's Church, East Kingston.

Given in marriage by her brother, the bride wore a gown of white nylon net over satin, fitted bodice trimmed with organza eyelet, long pointed sleeves and a high neckline. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a lace cap trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses and baby's breath.

Miss Rita Marie Herzog of Flatbush, sister of the bride as maid of honor, wore a gown of yellow net over tulle, off the shoulder neckline and a full skirt. She wore yellow mittens and carried a cascade of tallman roses and blue delphiniums.

Francis J. McCullough of East Kingston was best man.

After a wedding reception for about 50 guests at Schoentag's the couple left for a wedding trip to Indiana and Niagara Falls. For traveling she wore a white organza dress over pink tulle with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

They will make their future home on Flatbush avenue in Kingston.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

HOLDING WOMAN'S UMBRELLA

Many a family disagreement probably has resulted from this misunderstanding. "My husband objects to holding my umbrella over me, which I insist: every gentleman walking on the street with a lady would do. He says he doesn't mind not sharing his umbrella but he thinks as long as it is not large enough to keep both of us dry I should hold it over myself."

He is right. Your description suggests instead the duties of a doorman protecting a woman from the rain. A woman holds her own small umbrella over herself. A man's large enough to keep both dry, he would hold. She would take his bent arm to bring them as close as possible under the center of the umbrella.

Serving Rules
Dear Mrs. Post: (1) Should a salad fork or regular fork be used for cake and pie? (2) If meat is carved in the kitchen, how should it be placed on the meat platter—arranged in slices alone or in slices alongside of the partially carved roast or fowl?

Answer: (1) The salad fork. Salad and dessert forks are identical in size. (2) It is all carved and put on a platter; or if only a small part of a large roast or fowl probably will be eaten, the slices may be placed beside the uncarved meat.

Man's Mother

Dear Mrs. Post: What is your opinion of a girl who is not engaged to a man but knows him fairly well (he takes her out occasionally) telephoning his mother just for a friendly conversation? Of course, she met the mother and liked her very much, but this is the sole basis for her telephoning.

Answer: If the mother's voice and manner is friendly and welcoming, and in no way shows curiosity, there certainly is no impropriety in what seems to me a very natural impulse.

Misguided Children

Dear Mrs. Post: Someone has told my teen age children that you have said it was permissible to eat chicken with the fingers. I fear that you have been misquoted again.

Answer: Unless they are quoting from a chapter or article on "picaresque," I am being misquoted. Even at picnics, the chicken must be cold (meaning dry) and the joints cut so as not to have to be pulled apart.

Where should saltcellars and pepper pots be placed on the table? When should place cards be used? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-30 gives details for table setting and service. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Weil-Snow

Ceremonies Held For New School

Woodstock, July 10—Before a gathering of residents of the Woodstock Township, cornerstone ceremonies for the new Woodstock School, District No. 2 were held Saturday afternoon. Henry Morton Robinson, who was introduced by Walter S. Van Wagenen, school principal, said: "This is a particularly American scene, a scene that might be painted by Norman Rockwell for a Saturday Evening Post cover. We have gathered together to put the final, formal touches on a monument to education."

Describing the purpose of such a ceremony as this, Robinson pointed out that the first things Americans built when they landed in this country were a church and a school. They were built entirely by their own efforts, of their own free will and with their own money. We, in building this school, he said, are carrying on that tradition of free education. No one knows the heartaches which have gone into the realization of the school, but mutual cooperation have brought the triumph of the building.

Robinson raised the question as to why words were needed to buttress the deed now accomplished. Before the deed, he reminded his audience, comes the idea and before the idea comes the word clothing the idea. It is the idea of the American system of opportunity for all, for freedom of thought, freedom of education without reference to race, creed or color. This is the bulwark, he concluded, of the American way of living.

In a brief account of the nine years of work devoted to making the school a reality, Van Wagenen spoke of those who had made great contribution to this final outcome. Samuel Wilson and Warren Huty, former members of the school board; Clark Neher, Lorenz Stowell and Adolph Heckerth, school trustees; Mrs. Marjory Harder, treasurer; Mrs. Winifred Huty, school clerk; and Albert Graesser, architect for the school.

No one knows, and may never know, stated Van Wagenen, how much both Kenneth Wilson and John Egan have done to make the school possible. Reginald R. Bennett, district superintendent since 1941, was introduced. He reported that this is the first new school to be built in the district in 20 years. There has been no time since he began his duties that the teaching staff in the Woodstock School, he said, has not been superior.

The Rev. Harvey I. Todd delivered both the prayer and the benediction. At the close of the ceremonies Adolph Heckerth placed the first trowel of mortar on the cornerstone and invited all of those who had participated in the project to assist with the ceremony.

Artists Please Large

Woodstock, July 10—Playing to an exceptionally large audience at the second Maverick Sunday concert of the season, Jacqueline Marcant, pianist; Cynthia Eddy, cellist, and William Kroll, violinist, captured the rapt attention of their listeners throughout their magnificent performance.

Only musicians who have achieved the technical perfection exhibited by both Miss Marcant and Kroll could perform with such brilliance and ease the highly difficult Mozart Sonata No. 15 in B flat Major and the dramatically modern Debussy Sonata in G Minor. In the more somber and beautiful Mendelssohn Trio in D Minor opus 49, they were joined by Miss Eddy, providing one of the most satisfying afternoons of music yet to be heard.

As an added feature of the afternoon, there was an exhibition in the concert hall of the fine, sensitive drawings in black and white and color by William Pachner.

Garden Club Members

Tour Carl Residence
Woodstock, July 10—The Woodstock Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Sluizer Monday with the main topic of discussion being the plans to develop the project at the intersection of the Saugerties and West Hurley roads.

Mrs. Van Ness, president, still expressed the desire to enlarge the membership and further development in garden and flower work, such as flower arrangements and the display of flower exhibits in the town.

After tea and refreshments were served a trip was taken to the home of John Carl, where a treat was in store for the members. A profusion of blooms, Carl's garden represents many hours of labor. He assisted many of the members with advice as to how to brighten their gardens.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard Thibaut, Sr., August 7.

Presser's Paintings

Feature New Show
Woodstock, July 10—An interesting show has opened at Nan Pink's "Walk-up Gallery" with 10

Woodstock artists represented. Most outstanding are six canvases by Josef Presser, who studied at the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts and later in France, Belgium and Italy. He is represented in many museum collections, among them the Royal Neffiz Museum, Florence, Italy, the Georgia Petit Galleries, Paris, the Whitney Museum, New York, the Pennsylvania Museum of Fine Arts, Philadelphia, the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts. His work also is included in many private collections, including that of Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Presser's "Arabian Stallion" is especially arresting. Anton Otto Fischer's "Bouquet" and "Winter" afford pleasing contrast. Three portraits by Allen Cochran, Frances Stein and Julia Leaycraft, respectively, add dignity and warmth to the north side of the gallery.

Not to be overlooked is the "Landscape Blue" by Mrs. Camp of Saugerties. Mrs. Camp now in her eighties studied with the late John Carlson. Two competent watercolorists by M. Crouse and an "Impressionist study" by Jean Sherman give pleasing variation to the exhibition. This group show will be on view until July 15.

Will Meet Tonight

Woodstock, July 10—The Women's Civic Group of Woodstock will meet tonight at 8:15 at Parnassus Square, corner of the lower Byrdcliffe and Rock City roads. The meeting was postponed from the original date of July 6.

Capacity Crowd Sees

Kosloff Dance Recital
Woodstock, July 10—A capacity audience at the Town Hall Thursday night attended one of the most delightful dance recitals ever presented here. Under the gently persuasive and beguiling direction of Alexis Kosloff, members of his dancing class performed with gleeful, sometimes shy, but always well-schooled precision in a recital for the benefit of the Woodstock Fire Company No. 1.

A rousing opening for the event was provided by the Woodstock School Band, playing a number of spirited selections under the baton of Antonio Merola. In solos and in groups, enhanced by a variety of singularly lovely costumes, the young dancers displayed alike skillful training in the types of dances performed, toe, tap, folk and Spanish.

The highlight of the evening was Kosloff's exhibition dancing class with his troupe of ballet mites in the pink costumes which stopped traffic during last Saturday's market fair. Thursday night they stopped the show. Moving at a professional pace, Kosloff's recital was an altogether refreshing presentation.

General Clay Has met in an emergency session. Dewey said that Clay would give as "much time as possible and necessary" to the unsalaried job.

Clay retired from the Army on May 31, 1949. He has been chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Continental Can Company, Inc., in New York City.

Dewey told reporters: "I am deeply gratified to be able to announce that General Clay has accepted the chairmanship of civil defense for New York State."

"As the general in command in Berlin during the tense and critical postwar years, General Clay was not only a man whose extraordinary courage and skill saved Berlin for the western world, but he is an authority on Russian tactics."

At the same time, Governor Dewey appointed Leo V. Lanning of Buffalo as the second and final appointive member of the state commission, created by the 1950 legislature.

Lanning is the director of the state division of veterans' affairs. He will retain that post.

The commission will draft plans to coordinate all state agencies and build up localized organizations to act in case of outside attack.

Dewey charged last week that New York State could not wait for the Truman administration to set up a civilian defense organization.

The governor said that New York was proceeding "in the dark," he added, the national administration, had provided "no guidance."

The nine-member commission is expected to start functioning on a broad scale after today's special cabinet session.

Dewey said he would meet newsmen late today to outline the plan of action.

Will Get Counsel

Thomas E. Doyle, Jr., 30, of 30 Summer street, who was arrested Friday by Detective William Krum on a charge of impairing the morals of a minor was allowed time to obtain counsel, when he appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino Saturday.

The case was adjourned until July 18. Police said the arrest was on information given by the child complainant.

boosting provisions of the bill. Witnesses on tap include representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers, appearing in connection with the proposed $433,000,000 boost in taxes on corporations.

Administration aides forecast possible approval by the Senate this week of the huge appropriations bill, which would hold federal spending for the year $1,550,000,000 below President Truman's estimates.

For practical purposes, economy advocates had only a small segment of the big measure on which they could hope to make any cuts.

Represents Defense
Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) said that $25,190,000,000 of the $32,504,000,000 in cash outlays represents money for the defense establishment, foreign aid and war-connected expenditures such as atomic energy, veterans administration, strategic materials purchases and the maritime commission.

Of the $2,184,000,000 contract authority in the measure, he said $1,887,000,000 was for the same purpose.

If the Senate spent no more than a week on the bill, leaders said it might be possible for Congress to start a vacation August 1, since the tax bill would remain as the only major piece of legislation to be handled.

This schedule assumes that the controversial Fair Employment Practices Commission (F.E.P.C.) bill will not be taken up. The Senate has a test vote scheduled on this for Wednesday. A similar attempt to bring up the bill failed May 19.

The House, which is in better shape for an early adjournment than the Senate, today scheduled consideration of President Truman's proposal to create a new cabinet department of health, education and security.

Says Car Struck Truck

Raymond J. Vian of Schaffer, Mich., reported to the sheriff's office that his automobile struck the rear of a truck which stopped in front of him on Route 209 about 12 miles south of Kingston about 9:15 Sunday morning. The Vian automobile was damaged about its front end, he said. The sheriff's office reported the truck was a Babcock Farm truck operated by Horace Jones of 191 Hurley avenue. No personal injuries were reported.

DeMona was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Fred C. Woolsey and was fined $25. The money collected from the "one armed bandit" was turned over to the county treasurer.

Colonials Sweep Torrington Series, Then Split With Poughkeepsie

Scott, Whitfield, Peterman Win in KPBA Regatta

Manopoli Hurls 3-Hitter, Fans 10; Lose to Ostrom

McKever or Placento Face Chiefs Tonight

They should roll out the royal carpet and make with a brass band for our first place Colonials who open a five-day stand against the Poughkeepsie Chiefs tonight at municipal stadium.

With five out of six to their credit in the second half, Manager Gall's crew knocked off five straight victories on the road before Bill Ostrom and the Chiefs stopped them, 6 to 2, last night in the second game of a double-header at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie.

No Kingston club since the Colonial League came to town could match that record.

Lefty Bill McKever or Tony Placento will pitch for Kingston tonight. Alan Thomaier, the reformed outfielder, may try another mound stint for the Chiefs.

Manopoli Wins 8th

Johnny Manopoli unfurled a brilliant three-hitter to shut out the Torrington Braves, 4-0, Saturday in Torrington for a clean sweep of the game set.

Manopoli struck out 10 batters in notching his ninth win of the season. He finished with a grand flourish striking out the side in the ninth and reeling up six victims in the last three rounds. He was in peril only once—when Ed Musial tripled to open the sixth. But he forced the next two batters to pop to short and struck out the third.

Bobby Kunze stopped the Chiefs with five hits in Sunday's opener, scoring the deciding run over Elgie Gleason, Arlington right hander, who was knocked out of the box in the fourth. Kunze pitched shutout ball after yielding a first inning homer to Jack Sinnott and a single tally in the second.

Ostrom Buys Streak

Billy "The Kid" Ostrom seven-hitter the Colonials, 6-2, in the nightcap and was never in trouble after Poughkeepsie got to Artie Applebaum for three tallies in the second. Ostrom, who fanned seven, knocked in two runs during the rally.

Joe Sposa's double and Sam Placento's triple staked Manopoli to a 1-0 lead Saturday in Torrington and that's all he needed. Sposa's triple and a wild pitch made it 2-0 in the sixth. Two additional runs cluttered across in the ninth when Frank Merola was safe on an error. Nick Peipo tripled and scored on a wild pitch.

Gleason's wildness—he walked Placento, Merola, and Karson—behind Joe Sposa's double and an error accounted for a pair of Colonial tallies in the first inning of Sunday's opener. Harvey Porter blasted a two-run double to feature a three-run uprising in the fourth inning.

Sposa continued his good batting since his elevation to the No. 2 spot by knocking in both runs in the nightcap against Ostrom. Jerry Joe batted in one with an infield out in the third and then singled to right behind Charlie Aspromonte's leadoff triple in the eighth. But Ostrom quickly regained control of the game, fanning Porter and Placento and getting Merola on a long fly to right.

The date of the Freeman's second annual hole-in-one contest has been set for Sunday, August 20, at Wiltwyck Golf Club. The defending champions are Jim Dwyer of Twaalfskill and Mrs. Charles E. Burnett of Wiltwyck. Although final details have not been worked out, it is likely that the special hole for the tournament will be from the ridge separating No. 3 and No. 9 fairways to the new practice green.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

We glimpsed the Bauer sisters—Alice and Mariene—in Newburgh a couple of weeks ago. They're pretty, charming and terrific golfers. But that swing... it's not for mere mortals like you and me. It's a swing nursed through the years by their father, a veteran golf professional, and in the most eye-catching windup we ever saw in golf. It appeared to us that the average golfer trying to uncork in that fashion off the tee might easily make a slip and strangle himself. We made the trip with Dr. Doug Meyers and Ed Remmert. On the way back, the subject of the stiff left arm came up. Dr. Meyers made the startling observation that the surest way to keep a stiff left arm would be to encase the wing in one of those iron cylinders used to hold ice cream. Not a bad idea!

Of Men and Mice:

Fab Russell, the Saugerties gentleman-golfer, playing a few links with the Prime Minister of Canada... While his vivacious young daughter, Sally, makes daily treks over the fairways improving her game... Betty Flint's shank shot a few days ago almost hit the guy who is writing about her... Joe Santoro, who won the Catskill and Meadow Club Invitational in a space of a week is the same Mrs. Santoro, who is one of the state's leading women golfers and a member of the Woodlawn powerhouse of Kingston... Sally Russell, Mrs. Hankel Naigles and Paula Wiesner of Kingston won prizes in the Catskill tournament that attracted 110 entries. Paula's 110 was top score in Class C... Dutchess Country Club is host to an invitational on Wednesday, while Twaalfskill entertains on Tuesday, July 18... Mrs. Gerold R. Hallenbeck of Catskill, another top-notch golfer-bowler, won the recent Northeastern New York Women's Golf Association tournament at the Onondaga Country Club... She shot a sparkling back nine 38 to finish with 84, two strokes lower than "Big" Crane of Antlers... Mrs. Norris Dauch, Poughkeepsie, was third with 89.

Billows Will Not Defend Title:

Ray Billows' decision not to defend the New York State Amateur golf crown he has won seven times drew an immediate blast from Mike Lynch, a member of the publicity committee for the event which starts tomorrow at the Binghamton Country Club. In just a few words, Lynch charged that the state's "name" linkmen are ducking the tournament because they think Binghamton is a small town... And, because Jerry Dimmich, home grove amateur, might prove too tough... Master Dimmich might be tough, but not too ornery for Billows, who said he cannot defend his title because of the pressure of business... "I had to make a choice between playing in the state tournament or in the Metropolitan championships," said Billows, "and I prefer to play in the Met to be held the last week of this month." Ray recently won the Robert Todd Lincoln Memorial at Ekivank in Manchester, Vt., for the fourth time, tying a record set by H. Low Weatherwax, the former Yale star, who plays out of Red Hook and Dutchess Country Club... Billows, a three-time finalist but never champion, will try again in the National Amateur.

OBSERVATIONS... at the recent Goodall Round Robin... Most of the big pros play iron shots almost squarely off the middle, and right up close... The blade putter is going out of style... Of the 16 stars in the Palm Beach tournament, 13 used mallet style putters of varying width... Sam Snead used one that was a cross between a blade and a mallet and two others used blades.

Left Hand Is Guide Bringing Clubhead Squarely Into Ball

Ninth of a series written for NEA Service By GENE SARAZEN Winner of Them All

When professionals are striving to strengthen their grip, it is the left hand they work on, with or without a glove.

The left hand is the guide. It controls the position of the clubhead throughout the swing. It is responsible for bringing the clubhead squarely into the ball, so that the right hand, which supplies the power, can deliver the blow.

If the clubhead arrives at the ball in an incorrect position, the power serves only to magnify the degree of error. A player with a collapsible left hand and a powerful right is like a man driving an automobile and heading with a terrific burst of speed in exactly the wrong direction.

When you assume your grip with the left hand, make certain, normal position of address, that you can see at least three knuckles.

That sturdy grip will act as a wall on your hitting action. It will absorb the full impact KNUCKLING DOWN—When you assume your grip with the left hand, make certain, as you keep your hand in the normal position of address, that you can see at least three knuckles.

CINCINNATI SCOUTS LOOK OVER TALENT

Joe Ferro, standing, and Frank O'Rourke, seated, Metropolitan district scouts for the Cincinnati Reds, saw from a municipal stadium dugout to watch more than 100 candidates try to land places in the Cincinnati farm system. The workouts were staged Friday and Saturday and the Redlegs scouts said they had uncovered "a few" good looking prospects. They refused to divulge names, naturally. (Freeman Photo)

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Expert Succeeds With Bold Finesse

By OSWALD JACOBY Written for NEA Service

The average player takes many finesse that the expert avoids. The reason is that the expert tries to develop other resources in the hope that something better than a finesse will turn up.

This does not mean, however, that the expert has no use for a finesse. In many hands it is the normal play. As a matter of fact, there are times when the expert takes a finesse that the average player wouldn't dream of. An example of this kind is shown in today's hand.

South's jump to four hearts showed a very strong hand. It was not an attempt to "close" the hand at a game bid. South wanted his partner to continue the bidding if he had a good hand. As it happened, North had a poor hand and therefore passed.

Although the final contract was shaky, it was not unreasonable. The contract would have been made easily if the ace of diamonds had been in the West hand instead of in the East hand; or if North had held the king of clubs instead of the king of diamonds. With either of these slight changes it would be impossible to defeat a contract of four hearts.

In the play, West opened the jack of diamonds, dummy put up the king, and East won with the ace. East cashed the queen of diamonds and then shifted to the queen of clubs.

South took the ace of clubs, noting with deep regret that he was apparently doomed to lose two club tricks. Since he could afford to lose only one more trick, the contract seemed hopeless.

South's only chance was to set up a long spade in dummy and eventually discard one of the losing clubs on that spade. In order to do so, he had to ruff three spades in his own hand and still get back to dummy to cash the last spade. Therefore South would have to enter dummy three times outside of the spade suit!

Declarer began his campaign by leading his singleton spade to dummy's ace and ruffing a spade return with the ace of trumps. He then led the five of trumps towards dummy. When West played the seven of hearts, declarer finessed dummy's eight of hearts!

When this finesse succeeded, West clutched his cards closely to his chest and glared at declarer. He was wrong to be suspicious. South had not been sure his finesse would succeed. He had been willing to risk a two-trick defeat in order to play for the contract.

South continued by ruffing another spade with the king of trumps. He next led the six of hearts to dummy's ten and ruffed a third spade with the queen of hearts.

By now all of the spades and of the blow delivered by the right hand.

The player with a good left hand will make errors on only one side of the fairway. He won't both hook and slice, and this is the type of error that is easy to correct naturally.

The left hand is just like the hinges on a door. If the hinges are in the correct position, the door will open and close properly each time. If the left hand is in the correct position, the face of the clubhead will come into the ball squarely after swing.

The reason why the reminder grip, a feature of one make of clubs, helped me so much is that the position of my left hand, my hinge, never varied day in and day out.

trumps held by the opponents had been played. South could therefore lead his deuce of hearts to dummy's three of hearts. This gave dummy the lead and enabled declarer to cash the last spade. South then cheerfully conceded one losing club, and scored game and rubber with great satisfaction.

Case Is Adjourned

Occupants of three cars involved in a mishap at Broadway and St. James street Saturday afternoon, escaped unharmed according to the police. Thomas A. Hyman, 63, R.D. Kingston, driver of one of the cars, was arrested by Evelyn N. Fagher, DeWitt Lake, on a charge of passing a red light. The case was adjourned until Wednesday and bail was fixed at $25 when he appeared today before City Judge Raymond J. Mino. The police report at 5:30 p. m. said the Fagher car was going west on East St. James street and the Hyman auto was headed south on Broadway. The Fagher car, the report said, went left and was in collision with one owned by Carl Husta, 9 St. James street.

Americans Lose, Buddies Gain Face

American Headquarters in Korea, July 10 (AP)—Curiously, American reverses in early small-scale combat with North Korean troops have boosted the morale of the South Korean Army, American military sources said today.

The South Koreans are out-fighting their northern brothers now in every clash of infantry against infantry. Since practically all of the North Korean armor is committed against the American forces, this means the South Koreans are holding their own and even gaining ground.

The matter of morale rests on the fact the North Korean armor defeated the Americans too. The South Koreans have regained face, always an important factor in the Far East.

Senate Group Okays Maritime Cadets' Pay

Washington, July 10 (AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee has approved a $587,860 increase in the U. S. Maritime Commission appropriation to provide monthly pay allowances for cadets at the Maritime Training Schools.

For the Maritime training program the committee recommended a total of $3,930,520, compared with $3,342,660 voted by the House and $3,600,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau. The committee action Saturday is subject to approval of the Senate. The bill then must return to the House for consideration of changes.

In its report the committee said that its increase restores the full budget recommendation and also provides for the $65 monthly pay of cadets and specialist trainees at the schools at Kings Point and Sheephead Bay, N. Y., Alameda, Calif., and New Orleans.

The committee made no provision for funds to reopen the closed training schools at Pass Christian, Miss., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

Delegates Chosen
Delegates elected to the state Republican convention were Senator Wicks, Vincent Connolly, Robert A. Snyder, John F. Wadlin, Jay LeFevre, Kenneth L. Wilson, LeRoy Lounsbury, Clyde F. Gardner, N. LeVan Haver, John E. Egan and Oscar V. Newkirk. Alternate delegates elected were Bertha Connolly, Ethel Cameron, Marguerite Quick, George Rusk, Frank Campanario, Charles H. Gaffney, Benjamin Slutsky, Louis G. Bruhn, Frederick H. Stang, Joseph Kelly and Cluett Schantz.

Senator Wicks of Kingston and Marguerite Quick of High Falls were elected members of the Republican State Committee.
The committee to fill vacancies elected consisted of LeRoy Lounsbury of Ellenville, Vincent G. Connolly of Kingston and Clyde F. Gardner of Saugerties.

Heck Is Speaker
Oswald D. Heck, speaker of the New York State Assembly, guest speaker at the convention, told delegates that this year's Republican campaign on the statewide basis would stress accomplishments over the past eight years. He said the results of the Republican administration in the way of factual works were so great that, if a person does not believe the printed page, all he need do is "get in his automobile and take a ride through any section of the state, and see them for himself."

Heck said he served under Roosevelt, Lehman, Felt, and Dewey, and that "the eight years of the Dewey administration were the outstanding eight years in the history of New York state." He told of the Sunday evening conferences with Governor Dewey and Republican leaders, which he said were responsible for the unity in Albany. He compared this with what he termed the disunity which exists in Washington under Democratic administration.

In connection with these conferences, Heck praised State Senator Wicks. "You can be proud of the member you've sent to the Senate. There is never any question as to where your senator stands," he said.
The speaker also paid tribute to Assemblyman Wadlin, who he said "enjoys the reputation in Albany of being an outstanding servant."

Assembly Speaker Heck pointed to increased state aid to counties, cities, towns and villages as one example of progress under Republican administration. He asked the delegates to remember three figures: The total state budget of $866 million, the amount of $511 million which, from the total budget, is given back to the political subdivisions of the state, and the $350 million that the state keeps to run its affairs.

G.O.P. Gains Cited
Among the accomplishments during the past eight years in state government, Speaker Heck listed the following:
Reforestation revived to rebuild state forests and assist farmers.
Forest nursery program restored, 34,000,000 seedling trees started in 1948 and 1949.

State aid to county reforestation restored.
$500,000 to resume care of state plantations for more and better timber.
$19,787,375 for new construction and rehabilitation in state parks.

Ski projects constructed on Whiteface and Belleayre mountains, and a great new public beach launched at Lake George.
State aid to education more than doubled.

Anti-Communist law passed to assure teacher loyalty.
State University set up, with two medical centers.
$400,000,000 bonus for 1,700,000 veterans.

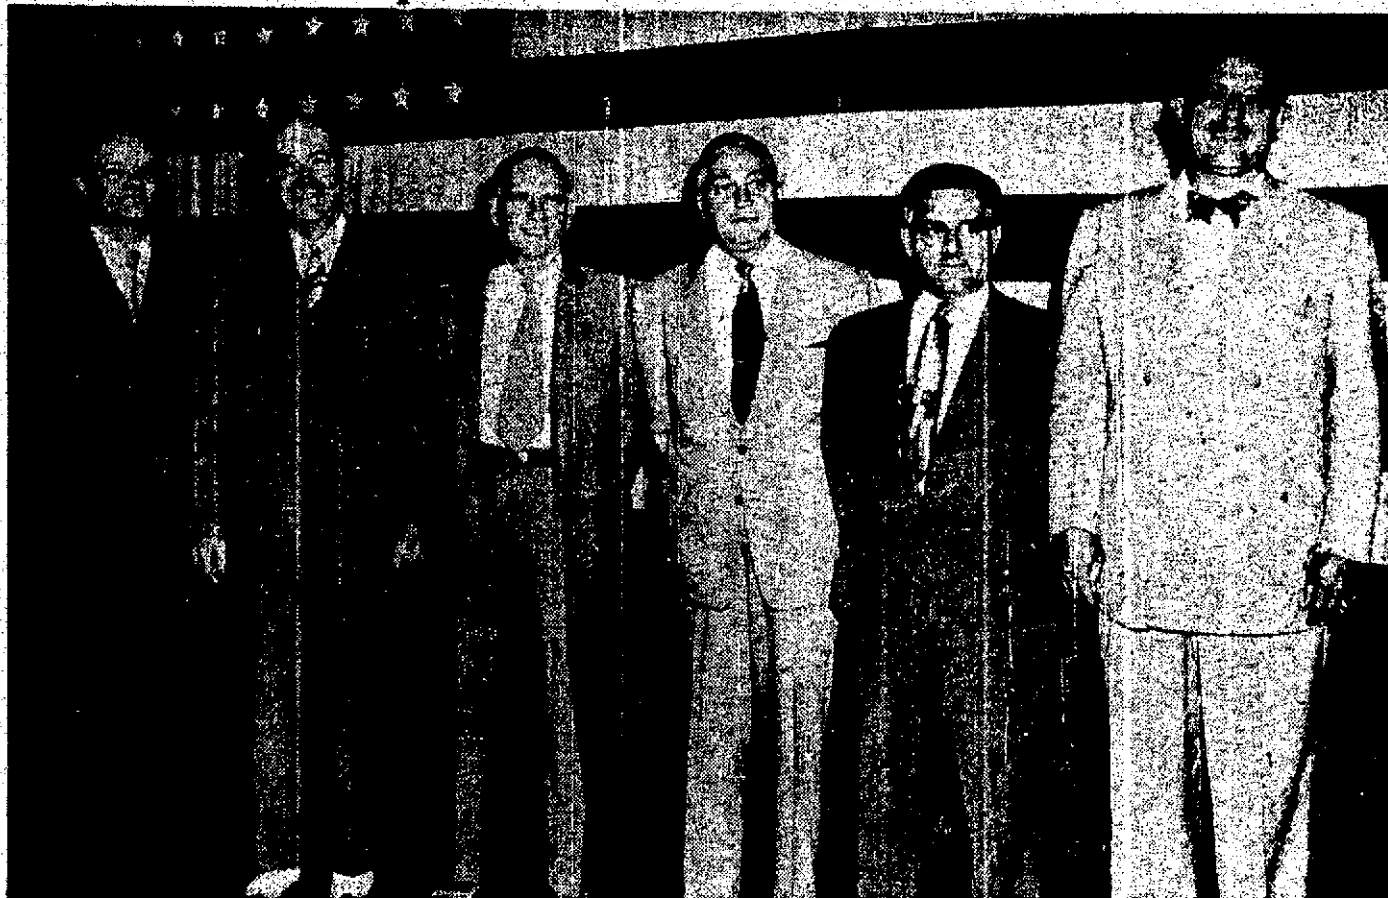

College facilities expanded to accommodate 100,000 veterans.
Speaker Heck said the list is so long that he could not possibly recite all the other gains. He mentioned briefly the new mental health program, housing and other points which, he said, will be included in a list to be sent to Republican committeemen for use during the campaign.

He urged election of Republicans to local office, for local units are the basis for the county organization and the county organization is the basis for state organization.

Wicks Opens Convention
Senator Wicks, Republican county chairman, opened the convention Saturday morning with a warning that it is urgent to clean the Communists and party-line followers out of the national Democratic administration in Washington. This can only be done, he said, by the election of a Republican congress.
"As we face the coming elections in November, the grave issues which face us as a free people demand that we work harder than ever before for the success of our party candidates. The election of a Republican congress is essential if we are to bring a halt to the creeping socialism which is gnawing at the vitals of our free institutions in Washington," he said.

"Only by the election of a Republican congress can we force the national Democrat administration to clean out from federal departments Communists, Red sympathizers, followers of the party line and traitors."
"We have the job right here in Ulster county by electing a Republican congressman. We all regret the decision of our able and respected Congressman, Jay LeFevre, to not seek re-election. Since he announced that decision, the Congressional delegates of this district have met and nominated, as Republican candidate for member of Congress, County Judge J. Ernest Wharton, of Richmondville, Schoharie county. Judge Wharton is an outstanding lawyer, a distinguished jurist, a loyal American and a gentleman of high character and unquestioned integrity."
Senator Wicks also said, "There is only one way to insure to the people of this county a continuation of our brand of good government, and that is by electing Republican candidates to office.

Other business at the convention included the adoption of a resolution offered by LeRoy Lounsbury recording with sorrow the passing of Dr. Alice Devine, vice chairman of the Republican county committee. Another resolution was adopted marking the passing of those committeemen who have died since the last convention.

The shift of responsibility took effect 60 days after the President proposed it, since Congress did not vote disapproval as it has done with several others of Mr. Truman's reorganization plans.
The President in proposing to center responsibility in the chairman indicated that he meant to stimulate planning of industrial mobilization, rationing, manpower controls and civilian defense.

McCormick Is Chosen

Washington, July 10 (AP)—President Truman today nominated Clarence J. McCormick of Indiana to be undersecretary of agriculture.

gram to re-locate refugees into states which do not now have a concentrated population of refugees.
4. Recognition of official rights (such as pensions) for those refugees who held public office before losing them to Nazis or Communists.
Not mentioned on today's program, by Kraft but prominent in refugee speeches in west Germany were demands for return of German territories given to Poland by Russia. The refugees are particularly bitter and anti-Communist on the point of lost territories.
The new group cut deeply into the strength of the established political parties. The left wing social democratic party, which has governed Schleswig-Holstein for several years, lost its parliamentary majority. It received less than one-third of the vote.
A right wing bloc—the Christian democrats, free democrats and the German party—won first place by pooling their strength behind the same candidates in each of the 46 electoral districts.
The combine is similar to the right wing coalition federal government at Bonn, and opposes the state's present socialist planned economy.
Final official tabulation gave this division of the legislative seats: right wing bloc, 31; social democrats, 18; refugees, 16; south Schleswig voters union, four.
